

Personal statement

A caring, friendly and sensitive individual who has much experience of working as part of a team, and who is dedicated to making a real difference to a person's life. Simon always ensures a patient orientated approach in the delivery of any care he is involved in, and is fully committed to client's under his supervision. He greatly enjoys the relationship building aspect of the job, in particular forming bonds with service users and thereby learning how to care for them better and be more attentive to their specific needs. He is currently looking for a suitable position with a company that is seeking to employ exceptional and talented people.
