PERSONAL SUMMARY

Maxine has a 'no ifs, no buts and no excuses' approach to teaching. She is passionate about what she teaches and genuinely keen to make a real difference to young people's lives. This is demonstrated by the fact that in her current role she regularly liaises with careers advisers, educational psychologists and education welfare officers to develop a learning system that engages her pupils. On a personal level she considers herself a real team-player who has an innovative streak and an unmatched ability to inspire others. Right now she would like to join a school where teaching staff benefit from extensive training and development opportunities.
